POETRY.

SUNSET.

ORT, as the glowing tints of autumn's even

Have o'er the west their golden radiance flung—

Soft as that hallowed light that burst from heaven—

When angel minstrels to the shepherds sung—

When not a cloud has on the horizon hung,

When stillness has her peaceful mantle spread—

And lo! 'tis e'en whispering zephyr into rest—

Calms every throbbing heart, and gently shed

Her holy happy influence o'er the breast—

Thus, have I thought the righteous seek repose—

Thus shine effulgent o'er their labors close,

But dearer far to me the evening hour,

When from the west, in massive volumes roll'd,

High up the blue ethereal vapors lower—

And leave below a glorious space of gold—

For thus I've hoped, though clogged with earthly mounds—

Though in her cloudy veil around me cast—

When all my little hour of life is told,

And all my errands and repentings past—

Thus, have I hoped, shall Faith disperse the gloom—

And thus with rays of promise gild the tomb.

MISCELLANEOUS.

From the New-York Traveller and Times.

PADDY MCCANN'S FRIGATE.

Paddy McCann lived in the town of Killaloo in the south of Ireland, and was notoriously the greatest drunkard in the province of Munster. Sunday and Monday, working day and holiday, all were alike to him, but then, to be sure, he was never without an excuse in his mouth; for this was Saint Patrick's, and that was

Saint John's, and another was Saint Bridget's, and so on to the end of the calendar, until at last it was a bye-word with the neighbors, that every day was a Saint's day with Paddy. However, in his defiance I must say, that it was neither for the honor of church or King, nor even altogether for the sake of Barney O'- Dowd's "dare devil," (which by the way was the best in the Parish) that Paddy could never find it in his heart to go to bed sober; but the fact was that a "lucky woman" who lived in a cell, at the fagend of Crooley Mountain, had told his mother, long before he was born, that her eldest son would yet make "a man of himself, by getting drunk," and indeed, it would be nothing but the sheerest slander, for any body to say, that Paddy did not do every thing that lay in his power, to the fulfilment of the prediction.

There was another cause also, which, perhaps, shewed its effect in the same way. About two years prior to the opening of my tale, he had tumbled head over heels in love with the prettiest girl in twelve baronies, but unfortunately she was the daughter of a "real prince," although through some unaccountable revolution in his family, he was obliged at the time to pick up his living selling cabbages. However, he had still too much of the King in his composition, to suffer the verities of a beggarly McCann, whose grand ancestor, at best, was nothing better than "youngest son and stirrup-holder of Japhet." Mary, it is true, would have waved all the difference of birth, and followed Paddy to the end of the world and after O! but just as they had come to the conclusion of "running away with each other," old Grogan was sent for to take possession of some property in Spain, and so before our Hero could accomplish his design, his deary was dragged away from him—forever.

The renowned river Shannon rolls between Killaloo and Balina, which is situated precisely on the opposite bank, and a suspicious and everlasting granite causeway join them at present, but in the days of Paddy McCann, which was during the reign of the redoubted Brian Borlomee;

they were connected by a broad flat spring board of a wooden bridge, which ever rose and fell beneath the footsteps of a passenger, as if the supporters were made of elastic wires, and on this account, there was scarcely a boy or girl for five miles along the country (who knew the use of their feet with all) but used to flock to the dance, which, time out of mind, had been kept up there of a Sunday evening. Besides this there was a "Pattern" held on it once a year, which was called "Jig Fair," alias the "Piper's Jubilee," for it was an old saying throughout the country, that any man who could tell a "drone from a hog's pudding," might always earn as much at one "Pattern," as would support him decently till the next, and on this account, as may be supposed, there was seldom any lack of musicians at "Jig Fair," and yet to the glory of the ancient "millions" be it spoken, the "devil a one of them was ever known to leave it without a sore elbow.

The sun rose upon a very beautiful morning, about two years after Grogan's voyage to Spain, and it might soon be discovered that it was the anniversary of the vessel in order.

Month after month rolled away, and still Paddy could see no land, but however, there was more than one excuse for this, for he contrived to keep himself blind drunk nearly the whole time, thus at once proving that the whiskey which our forefathers used, was a different concoction from that which we find in the same market at present, for while the one impaired the vision, it is a well establish-ception of, and even at the time in question, it was considered partly a miracle, for such was the increase of tents and customers, gingerbread stalls and apple-carts, with all the other appurtenances of an Irish fair, that it becomes a matter of speculation among many concerned, as to whether the old bridge would be able to bear them. However, this was an affair of little moment, for what true Irishman would ponder a minute on the chance of breaking his neck, or being tumbled into a river, when the more impatient items of a four handed reel or a hornpipe, would be likely to be put to a stand-still by the reflection.

Our friend Paddy of course was up to his eyes in business, at least during the earlier part of the bustle, for before midday it was discovered he staggered in his steps, which however was partly attributed to the motion of the "fair ground," for it appeared for all the world, as if it was taking a jig to itself. But in a short time after, the whole truth was manifest, for while engaged in the most interesting part of the "Phoka's Rink," Paddy Mc-

Cann lost his balance, and went madly head over heels under the mate. Still, the piping and jigging continued, while our hero was all the time snoring in a corner, when all of a sudden the old bridge began to groan and shake, as if indignant at the extra weight of abuse that was heaped upon it, and the next moment it fairly broke away from the banks and went triumphantly sailing down the river.

Such a hurrabaloo—women screaming, men cursing—dogs barking, and bagpipes uttering their expiring groans, was never before heard since the time of Mallin O'-

Shea's wedding, when the two mountains closed over head, and left half the country howling away in the middle. However it was of short duration, for they all succeeded in scrambling up the banks, or swimming to the shore, with the exception of Paddy, who, little conscious of what was going forward, was still snoring away for the bare life under the table.

In the confusion no one had thought of him, nor in fact of any thing else but saving themselves, and when they had a little time to look about afterwards—Lo! it was too late—bridge-tents, bread-stands, apple-carts, and all the paraphernalia, with Paddy along with them, were fairly out of sight, for it chanced there was a very strong flood in the river at the time, so that all hope of recovering their runaway fair ground was entirely abandoned, those concerned making up their minds to finish the duties of the day on the good green banks of the Shannon.

All this while the bridge was making the most of its way for the Atlantic, which in consequence of the extreme

A TEMPLE OF INIQUITY.

It appears from a late number of the Boston Galaxy, that that city is disgraced and demoralized by the existence there, of a public gambling and drinking house, that has no parallel but in the "hells" of London and Paris. It is called the Boston Gymnasium. The editor of the Galaxy paid it a visit on Fast day. We give the following bold picture of its character.

The infernal region was redolent of the fumes of sick stomachs, gin and tobacco. There were about a hundred persons assembled: blackguards, swindlers, and rascals of every description. Many of the sons of the aristocracy of the city were there, as well as others, who, from their garb, one would have taken for honest gentlemen. The rest were foreigners and unwashed villains. To the honor of the colored population be it spoken, not one of them were there. Here was seen the husband, whose wife sat lonely at home, pining for his company; there the father, whose children were crying for bread he was casting on the waters, not to return again. There stood the hopeful urchin, whose father, good man, supposed his pride and honor was at that very moment adding in church. But had the assembly been boys from ten to sixteen years old. It would have appeared that they were preparing to start from the state prison and to die on the gallows.

In the middle of this earthly hell was a polygonal enclosure of boards, about ten feet in diameter, the floor of which was strewn with tan, to drink the blood of the cocks. Here two of the gallant birds were engaged. Round the south end of the hall were ranged a score of tea chests, in each of which a cock was crouching at his neighbors. As many more were hanging in bags at the walls of the building. In one corner stood a genteel blackguard, singing an obscene song, to the infinite satisfaction of his auditors. Right opposite to him sat a bloated wretch, crucians crucians gemina, and in the intervals of his intestine symphony, holding forth in praise of temperance. Oaths and blasphemies rung on every side, and a few fifty-cuffs were exchanged.

On entering, we went straight to the cock-pit, where a state colored and a red bird were striving to kill each other with steel spurs, which had been affixed to their legs, probably because the natural weapons could not draw blood fast enough for the taste of the spectators. The feathers flew and the gore streamed. Presently the state colored cock drove his gaff through the brain of his adversary, who fell dead on the spot. We turned away to a gaming-table, which stood in another part of the room, with a sensation of relief.

The play was Roulette. In the centre of the table was a wheel, resembling wheels of fortune, gaudily painted and marked with hieroglyphics. There were little compartments round its edge—an ivory ball was made to run round its periphery, and as it stopped the gamblers lost or won. On each side of the wheel was a parallelogram divided into squares, with figures on which the players placed their stakes. An ill-looking gallow-bird turned the wheel, and another marked the phases of it. The marker had under his hand a pile of silver and gold, 18 inches high, which had been won. We observed that the bank gained 5 times out of 6. The management of the table was healthful to us; nevertheless we put down & lost to the amount of 75 cents. We did this that we might the better be able to swear to the facts and identify the two scoundrels who kept the table. We have since seen them on 'change among honest men.

A boy about 14 years old staked his last fourpenny piece and lost it. Then tears gushed from his eyes. He went out tearing his hair and exclaiming, "O my poor father! O my poor mother! What will become of me! O how I wish my boss had not sent me after that money!" This incident was a mine of mirth to the gamblers—a horse laugh shook the building.

But now Coolidge, with a stentorian voice and a kind of bottle swag, proclaimed that two cocks more were to be gaffed. He took a cock out of a bag and called to a brawny Irishman who stood at hand, "Henry give me my saw." A denial's saw was procured, and the villains proceeded to our inexpressible horror, to saw off the bipped's spurs close to his legs. The blood streamed down, and the operators proceeded to fasten the gaffs upon the raw stumps. When a second cock had been accoutred in the like manner, Coolidge and Henry held them up and excited them to peck at each other. When they were sufficiently furious, they were set down and the set-to commenced.

One of the birds was red, the other black. They several times drove the gaffs into each other's bodies, but this did not abate their ardor. Bets ran high. At last the red thrust his spur through the black cock's knee joint, and they both fell tangled together. They were raised, disunited and set to fighting again.

The black could now hardly stand. A thrust in the brain quelled his courage, and he hopped over the enclosure. Coolidge took him up, smoothed his feathers, wiped away the blood that blinded his eyes, and put him again into the pit—Oh! it was cruel, savage, bloody. The poor bird had not, however, much more to suffer. A second stroke in the brain laid him asleep forever.

Thus the sport continued till four the next morning, and so it is carried on every Saturday night and Sunday morning. We have looked sons whom he has recently accused in his paper of gambling. We have not been able to learn the particulars, but understand there was a show of dirks and pistols, and some hard knocks on the occasion.—Boston Geo.

ADAMS SENTINEL.

GETTYSBURG, Pa. MAY 6, 1833.

We are requested by HENRY WELSH, to state, that his name was placed to the advertisement published in our last relative to certain outstanding fees on the Dockets of Adams county, without his knowledge or consent; and he has requested us to withdraw his name from said advertisement.

Important Invention.—We are very credibly informed, that Doctor ZOLLICKOFFER, of Middleburg, Maryland, has made one of the most important and useful discoveries that has been found out for many years. It is an invention that every individual of the community must necessarily feel more or less interested in, because it places them in travel in wheel-carriages of all descriptions, beyond the reach of accident, should any breakage or derangement occur to the running part. For instance, should the wheel of one out of the four come off, the wheel will be so constructed, that it will not fall off, but will revolve with as much safety as the other, and in fact, as though the broken one remained in, or the put on. It is so constructed, that the axle-tree should break off anywhere within the hub, the wheel, nevertheless, is kept in its position, and performs its revolutions as usual. If the axle-tree should break any where in its centre, a carriage or gig would run for hundreds of miles, without the accident being discovered, for there would be no displacing of either the position of the axle-tree or wheels, and no more derangement occur than if this central fracture had not existed. If the axle-tree should break off any where at its shoulder, or between this point and its centre, the wheel is still kept in its place.

In this instance, however, it then becomes partially locked, from the action of the instrument. Should even the whole of the axle-trees described take place, at the same time, to both wheels, both spindles, and both axle-trees, the wheels will, nevertheless, retain their position without any deviation, and the vehicle that is suspended on the axle-tree or axle-trees remain in the road, without falling in any way whatever, and in an out-of-the-way situation. There is as much certainty in its operation, as there is in a stone falling to the ground when thrown into the atmosphere. There is no friction, or any other force or stress upon the instrument, and it is, therefore, not subject to wear or tear in any way whatever, by which it might become deranged or impaired, so as to render it unfit for use when brought into action. It is perfectly simple in its construction, and at the same time highly ornamental. Dr. ZOLLICKOFFER has, for this invention, obtained Letters Patent from the United States. It can be applied to a single axle tree at about $10 expense, and is susceptible of being applied to carriages of all descriptions.

The invention is, certainly, highly important to the travelling community; and we recommend attention to it by those engaged in the manufacture of carriages.

TOWN MEETING.
In pursuance of public notice, a large and respectable meeting of the citizens of Gettysburg was held at the Court-house, on Tuesday evening the 30th ult., to adopt some measures to procure aid to those citizens of the town of CUMBERLAND, Md., who have been rendered destitute by the late fire at that place.—Wm. McCLELLAN, Esq. was appointed Chairman, and Andrew G. Miller Secretary.

Resolved, That the following named persons be a Committee to solicit contributions for the above object, and to transmit the same to Cumberland; and that the citizens of the county generally, as well as those of this town, be respectfully requested to contribute their mite towards this laudable and humane purpose:

Samuel Fahnstock, Jacob Sanders, John Houck, Michl C. Clarkson, David McCreary, Rev. Schmucker, James Gourley, " Watson, John B. Marsh, " McLean, Samuel R. Russell, " Ruthrauff, Robt. G. Harper, " Young, Jas. A. Thompson, Resolved, That these proceedings be signed and published.

WM. McCLELLAN, Ch'm.
A. G. MILLER, Sec'y.

The Committee are requested to meet at the Franklin House, this evening (Monday) at 7 o'clock.

A fire occurred in the city of New York on Wednesday morning last, which was more extensive than any that has occurred there for 25 years. Four squares of buildings were destroyed, comprising, it is computed, from 100 to 150 houses, and driving into the street from 350 to 400 families! Upwards of 40 horses were burnt, and eight stages, the property of a stage-owner. Such scenes of distress, says the Com. Advertiser, were never before witnessed by the thousands of persons who were the lookers on of this dreadful calamity.

Counterfeit $10 on the State Bank of Camden, are in circulation, letter B, payable to J. Carr, dated May 1st, 1830; R. W. Ogden, Cashier; Richard M. Cooper, President.

The report seems generally credited, that WILLIAM J. DUANE, Esq. has been appointed Secretary of the Treasury of the United States. Pennsylvania has been remarkable for her contributions of fiscal advisers to the cabinet of the nation—Albert Gallatin, Alexander J. Dallas, Richard Rush, Samuel D. Ingham; and now Wm. J. Duane—five of the ten secretaries since 1789, and five of the seven since 1814.

CONSTITUTION.

Of the Young Men's Temperance Society of Gettysburg.

PREAMBLE.—We, the subscribers, being deeply impressed with the baneful effects resulting from the use of Spirituous Liquors, and being sensible that we have a part to act in the advancement of the Temperance Reformation, do hereby resolve to form ourselves into a Society for this purpose, and we adopt the following constitution:

ARTICLE 1st. This Society shall be called the Young Men's Temperance Association of the Borough of Gettysburg. It shall be composed of such young men of the borough and its vicinity, who may choose to combine their influence for promoting the objects of the association, by consenting to the conditions of this Constitution and signing it; and it shall be auxiliary to the "Pennsylvania State Temperance Society of Gettysburg and its vicinity."

ART. 2nd. The Officers of the Society shall consist of a President, Vice-President, and Secretary, who shall also act as Treasurer.

ART. 3rd. It shall be the duty of the President, in case of his absence, of the Vice-President, to preside at all meetings of the Society, and to call Special meetings of the same when occasion requires it.

ART. 4th. The Secretary shall keep a fair record of the proceedings of the Society in a book provided for that purpose, and he shall also perform the duties appertaining to the office of Treasurer, by taking charge of any funds which may belong to the Society.

ART. 5th. The Members of this Society, by signing the Constitution, will consider themselves bound by every principle of honor, to abstain entirely from the use of Spirituous and Vinous Liquors, unless prescribed by a Physician as a medicine; and further, that they will not offer them to others as an entertainment, & that they will use the influence of moral example against them.

ART. 6th. No member of this Society shall be engaged or concerned in procuring, buying or selling spirituous or vinous liquors, in any other capacity than that of Agent, except when prescribed by a Physician as a medicine, or for chemical and other scientific purposes, and the purposes of the mechanic arts.

ART. 7th. Any member of this Society may withdraw from the same by signifying his intention to the Secretary in writing.

ART. 8th. This Society shall meet at least semi-annually, on the last Saturday in March, and the second Saturday of September; and an Address, or Addresses, shall be delivered by a person or persons previously appointed.

ART. 9th. The Society shall annually elect its Officers, who shall prepare the annual report, and perform their respective duties, as specified in the third and fourth Articles of this Constitution.

ART. 10th. Any alteration of this Constitution may be made at either of the semi-annual or special meetings, by a vote of two-thirds of the members present.

P. S. There are fifty-five members belonging to the Society.

Staging.—We learn with pleasure, that arrangements have been made by a company of gentlemen, for starting a new and complete line of four horse stages from Wrightsville in this county, to Hagerstown, Maryland, as soon as the Pennsylvania Rail Road and the Columbia Bridge are finished, and that the best of horses and stages will be upon the route. The line will pass through Gettysburg.

We wish them success. Arrangements are also made for running the great Western Mail from Philadelphia through here to Pittsburg, at the same time.

FRONTIER RUMORS.
We have no belief whatever in the frontier rumors of Indian wars. A writer in the St. Louis Times appears to understand the subject. An Indian war is probable in every sense of the word; and nothing is hailed with greater pleasure by these border people than the signal for a fight. In the first place they know the Indians cannot successfully resist our power; and in the second, they know that immense sums of money will be poured in among them. Six hundred and thirty thousand dollars were appropriated by the late Congress to meet the expenses of the Black Hawk war! This is truly a harvest; and when only Indians are to be killed, the trouble of reaping it is mere pastime. No wonder that efforts should be made to get up another such conflict. Nothing is easier. It is only to goad the Indian to desperation, make him strike, and then send the war cry along the borders, set the families to flying before the dangers that are said to threaten, and the thing is done.

We hope the Executive will not permit these excitements to go on. We can answer for the Head of the War Department, that when a man knows more of the Indian character, or of the true condition of things on the frontiers, that so far as his power may be permitted to go, he will act wisely and effectively.

Melancholy Death.—Died, on Friday, the 5th inst. near Carrollton, (Ill.) James Turney, Esq. late Attorney General of the State of Illinois.

Mr. Turney had recently become impressed with the solemn truths of Christianity, with glowing fervor he had in a measure abandoned his profession to preach Christ crucified and him only. While recently engaged in the performance of the act of baptizing a brother who had a wooden leg, that had at its end a sharpened steel point, which, accidentally, while in the water, the individual baptised unfortunately set the point of the leg, with all its attendant weight, on the foot of the deceased, which wounded it severely, and the wound ultimately mortified, which produced his death.

The Pittsburgh Mercury, of Friday last, informs us, that William Brackenridge, Esq. formerly a resident of Carlisle, committed suicide, by cutting his throat in such a dreadful manner, on the Wednesday preceding, as nearly to sever the head from his body. There was no cause stated for the rash and horrible act. There were but few men of our acquaintance, who had fairer prospects a few years since, of becoming a useful and respectable citizen.

In addition to the above, we find the following notice in the Pittsburg Manufacturer.

Suicide.—On last Wednesday morning, Wm. Brackenridge, Esq. killed himself by cutting his throat with a razor. The immediate cause of this act is not known, but probably derangement of mind, produced by dissipation. Mr. Brackenridge possessed a mind of the highest order, which would, if he had fallen into a vortex of immorality, have adorned the highest stations in society.

His life, and his awful death, will we hope, furnish a warning to those who are now abusing by dissipation, their own existence.

Punishing of Gambling in Ohio.—A law has recently been passed by the Ohio Legislature, against gambling; subjecting the gambler upon conviction, to a fine of $500 and imprisonment; and incapacitating him from afterwards holding any office, or exercising the right of suffrage in that state.

THE SUNDAY LAW.
Some time since, the wife of Mr. Foster, of New York, was arrested in Connecticut while attempting to proceed from one town to another, on the first day of the week. She was detained until evening, and then permitted to proceed on her journey. Mr. Foster, the husband, instituted a suit against the arresting constable, and the court decided that the defendant was right in arresting the lady, but that he lost the opportunity of detaining her by neglecting to carry the offender before a magistrate, to be prosecuted according to law. The lady violated the law in travelling on Sunday, but the constable deprived himself of his justification for arrest, by not carrying the matter further. The damages were $125.

To the Delegates appointed to attend the United States Temperance Convention.
GENTLEMEN:—The undersigned representatives of the "Pennsylvania State Temperance Society," in the Convention to be held in this city on the 24th of May next, beg leave to inform you that they will be in attendance at the Hall of Independence for three days preceding the above date, from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M. and from 4 to 6 P. M. to give and receive such explanations on matters of common interest to us all, as may be thought conducive to the despatch of business in the Convention, and to the personal convenience of its members.

State of Illinois. Mr. Turney had recently become impressed with the solemn truths of Christianity, with glowing fervor he had in a measure abandoned his profession to preach Christ crucified and him only. While recently engaged in the performance of the act of baptizing a brother who had a wooden leg, that had at its end a sharpened steel point, which, accidentally, while in the water, the individual baptised unfortunately set the point of the leg, with all its attendant weight, on the foot of the deceased, which wounded it severely, and the wound ultimately mortified, which produced his death.

The Pittsburgh Mercury, of Friday last, informs us, that William Brackenridge, Esq. formerly a resident of Carlisle, committed suicide, by cutting his throat in such a dreadful manner, on the Wednesday preceding, as nearly to sever the head from his body. There was no cause stated for the rash and horrible act. There were but few men of our acquaintance, who had fairer prospects a few years since, of becoming a useful and respectable citizen.

In addition to the above, we find the following notice in the Pittsburg Manufacturer.

Suicide.—On last Wednesday morning, Wm. Brackenridge, Esq. killed himself by cutting his throat with a razor. The immediate cause of this act is not known, but probably derangement of mind, produced by dissipation. Mr. Brackenridge possessed a mind of the highest order, which would, if he had fallen into a vortex of immorality, have adorned the highest stations in society.

His life, and his awful death, will we hope, furnish a warning to those who are now abusing by dissipation, their own existence.

Punishing of Gambling in Ohio.—A law has recently been passed by the Ohio Legislature, against gambling; subjecting the gambler upon conviction, to a fine of $500 and imprisonment; and incapacitating him from afterwards holding any office, or exercising the right of suffrage in that state.

THE SUNDAY LAW.
Some time since, the wife of Mr. Foster, of New York, was arrested in Connecticut while attempting to proceed from one town to another, on the first day of the week. She was detained until evening, and then permitted to proceed on her journey. Mr. Foster, the husband, instituted a suit against the arresting constable, and the court decided that the defendant was right in arresting the lady, but that he lost the opportunity of detaining her by neglecting to carry the offender before a magistrate, to be prosecuted according to law. The lady violated the law in travelling on Sunday, but the constable deprived himself of his justification for arrest, by not carrying the matter further. The damages were $125.

deceased, to appear at this Court, and accept or refuse to take the Real Estate of said deceased, at the valuation made thereof; and being severally called, and making no answer—

The Court Grant a Rule,

On all the Heirs and Legal Representatives of said deceased, to wit: Catharine, intermarried with John C. Stoner, Leah, intermarried with Albert Montandon, Susanah, and George, who is a minor, and has for his guardian Michael Geiselman; and the children of Elizabeth, who was intermarried with Baltzer Warner, and since dead, viz. Jacob Warner, Michael Warner, Mary Warner, and Sarah Warner, who are minors, and have for their guardian Michael Geiselman, or the guardians of each of them as are minors, to be and appear at the next Orphans' Court, to be held at Gettysburg, for the County of Adams, on the twenty-eighth day of May next, to show cause why the Real Estate of said deceased should not be sold agreeably to the Intestate Laws of this Commonwealth.

By the Court,
JOHN B. CLARK, Clerk.
April 29. 1c

At an Orphans' Court,

HELD at Gettysburg, for the County of Adams, on the
